Interview with Charles Ketchke, 108 King St., N.Y. City

Operative interviewed Mr. Charles Ketchke at his home, 108 King Street, New York City, who is an uncle of Harry Ketchke of 626 56th Street Brooklyn.

Operative asked him if he knew where his nephew Harry is at the present time and he stated that he did not know except that it is someplace in Brooklyn where he is living with his third wife. Operative then asked him if he knew Ketchke's wife with whom he lived in Hoboken some years ago. He replied that he did not know her. Operative asked him if he knew where Ketchke married her and where he received his divorce from her and he replied that he heard that Ketchke never married his first two wives at all, only living with them until he got tired of them and then left them.

Charles Ketchke further stated that his nephew Harry Ketchke married his present wife about ten or twelve years ago. He does not know where, but is certain that they are legally married as there was a church ceremony.

Operative then went to the Hall of Records in Brooklyn and made a search of the marriage records from 1908 to 1918 but could not find any trace of Harry Ketchke's name. If we could locate the record of this marriage it would show whether Ketchke was a divorced man.

Operative then returned to New Brunswick, N.J. as per instructions.
